MISCELLANEOUS READING. PERCHANCE HE'LL WOO AGAIN.

They tell me youth should know no care, Old age should feel it only, But spells of grief have failen now-On one who loved too fondly He treads as it on blighted hopes,

And she, methinks, the same, But these are only youthful freaks Perchance he'll woo again.

The rippling stream of 1 ve which flowed So calmly once, is hushed, The spirit of the happy bird, ls withered now and crushed : While memories of the past o'erflow, And nightly rack his brain, I will but say these simple words, Perchance he'll woo again.

'Twas but a thought, a passing thought, Which sometimes rules the feelings, And oftentimes it wounds too deep, For earthly cares or healings The dart has struck the centre mark, The lance the bluest vein.

But still I see no reason why,

He should not woo again! The words which pass in moment's wrath, Are oftentimes relented. The passions of a sudden thought,

Are oftentimes repented : The sweets of life are passed and gone, The bitter parts remain, Yet still I speak these simple words, Perchance he'll woo again.

POPULAR FEELING FOR GEN. SCOTT. The Examiner, in its account of the grand pageant in Richmond on the 22d, makes the following very happy comparison:

"The pomp and splendor of the pageant, the crowded streets, the housetops covered with people, the cheers and plaudits, reminded us of the poet's description of Boling-750 broke's entry into London. There was no Bolingbroke in the procession, but the gallant veteran, Gen. Scott, was greeted with as much enthusiasm and more sincerity than attended Bolingbroke's triumphal march .-You would have thought the very windows 70 00 spake;

35 00 So many greedy looks of young and old Through casements darted their desiring eyes Upon his visage; and that all the walls With painted imagery, had said at once-Jesu preserve thee! Welcome General; Whist he from one side to the other turning, Bespake them thus: I thank you countrymen: And thus still doing, thus he passed along.

It was a deserved compliment—the spontaneous tribute of admiration and respect 2,000 paid by the people to a General who had 1,500 fought the battles of his country with so 1,000 | much glory and success, and who has made 500 a name which will live forever in the Pan-300 theon of his country's history."
